What are PIMCO Source ETFs?

PIMCO Source ETFs are open-ended UCITS funds. Unlike traditional open-ended funds, ETFs can be bought and sold on a stock exchange like ordinary shares.

How does the ETF achieve its investment objective?

The ETF employs the physical replication method, it invests in a range of securities broadly similar to the constituents of the benchmark index. Securities are selected by the portfolio manager, purchased by PIMCO on behalf of the ETF and held by the Custodian. The net asset value of the ETF directly reflects the value of the assets held in custody.
